

To Whom It May Concern:

It is with great pleasure that I offer "kudos" to Proctor Mechanical for their invaluable contributions to the construction of the Iowa Speedway, a project that has been eagerly anticipated by a rabid fan base here in Iowa, and that will serve as an entertainment jewel in the state for years to come.

Work started on March 8, 2005, with a 451-day construction window. It is not hyperbole to say that the Proctor Mechanical crew was willing to go beyond the call day after day to see that the project remained on time and on budget.

We were all very impressed with Proctor Mechanical for their willingness to persevere and stick to our very stringent timelines, and to deliver impeccable products and services.

As we look forward to the first green flag being waved on September 15, I can honestly say we could not have accomplished this without professionals, the likes of those employed by Proctor Mechanical.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Andy Vertrees". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

Andy Vertrees
Chief Operating Officer